

According to the Legislature of Arkansas, we must now say Arkansas.

The most pretentious boom of the season is the public sentiment against the star swindlers. The men who were in the steal will hear something drop in due time.

A bill has passed both houses of the Massachusetts Legislature to compel the removal of all screens in front of the bar in liquor saloons. This makes the purchase of liquor as open to the public eyes as the purchase of sugar.

The Democrats thought they had a good thing on the Republicans when the star swindlers came to light, but when they learned that Barnum and a lot of other Democratic bosses were just covered with the star odium, they took in their sails quickly.

An attempt has been made of late to ascertain definitely the birth place of George Washington, so that the monument authorized by Congress, can be erected thereon. There are disputes as to the exact spot which may delay the building of the monument.

Two of the greatest living American tragedians—Booth and McCullough—are in London, each drawing immense houses and eliciting the most enthusiastic applause. Lords and Dukes are among those who are delighted with the acting of these eminent tragedians.

From Washington: "It is said that the investigation of the star route contract system is to be transferred to the Department of Justice." This is where it belongs and probably the men who organized the system of robbery will get justice. It is pretty certain that if the matter was left to Congress, justice would be pretty badly cheated.

General Brady and the men who aided him in swindling the government out of two million dollars on the star route service, propose to fight the administration for exposing the thieves and pressing their prosecution. That is a good thing for the administration. In such a contest as this, the President and the cabinet will have the whole country on their side.

There is yet no telling what the Republicans will do in the executive session of the Senate when it is held. There will be a great many nominations contested, should the Conkling idea prevail. He wants any nomination objected to by one Senator from the State to which the nomination belongs, a contested one. This point has not been settled by the Republican caucus, and should not prevail. The bone of contention is the confirmation of Judge Robertson, and from the present condition of things at the capitol there is no telling what will be the result of controversy over him.

It has been stated that Senator Dawes, of Massachusetts, has received a letter from the President relative to the difficulty between the Republican Senators and the administration, in which the President had declared that he would heartily support the Senators in any effort to secure a disruption of the Solid South and a free ballot and a fair count, but that he could not support the dead-lock to secure the election of Mr. Gorman, editor of the Republican, who was constantly assailing the administration; and that as to Robertson, if the Republican Senators decided that all the nominations ought to be withdrawn, he would withdraw them.

Several months ago the Gazette published an article on shop-lifting in New York and other large cities, which gave some striking examples of stealing in shops and stores by women who were the most able to purchase all the goods they need. There does not seem to be any accounting for this strange freak of the human mind. One can readily explain why a person suffering from hunger will steal a loaf of bread; and why a shivering beggar will steal a garment to protect his frail body against the shafts of a cold and piercing winter's wind. But why persons of commanding positions in society, who have quite an abundance of this world's goods will resort to petty larceny, is not so easily explained. Among the shop-stealers there can be found more women of respectable connections and who have no occasion to steal, than those who are beggarly poor and steal of necessity. Only a few days ago, Mary Ames, a resident of Third avenue, in New York, a married woman of some means and of excellent standing in society, went into a store to do some shopping, and when an opportunity, as she thought, presented itself, she tried to carry off two thimbles and a few hair-pins, the value of all being only twenty-eight cents! Now here is the question: Why should she risk the toombs for twenty-eight cents worth of thimbles and hair-pins? She did not need them, and if she had needed them she was abundantly able to buy better ones than she attempted to steal. Psychologists should find this an interesting field for investigation. Undoubtedly the mind is in a disordered condition, otherwise a person of means would not attempt to steal trivial articles when they know that all the chances are against them. But it seems the persons who are largely engaged in shop-lifting prefer to steal at the risk of punishment than not. There is a psychological bother about this, and is well worth a close examination and a thorough study. In the case of Mrs. Ames, although she stole but twenty-eight cents worth, the court gave her one day in jail and imposed a fine of fifty dollars. This may be an act of charity on the part of the court toward the unfortunate woman; and no doubt this experience will last her the balance of her life. It may be hard treatment for a respectable woman who resides on a fashionable avenue, but it will likely prove effectual. For a time at least, it will subdue the "irresistible" propensity to steal.

AN EXECUTIVE SESSION.

The Republican Caucus Decide to Hold an Executive Session To-day.

All Nominations Made by the President will be Referred to Committees.

And if no Objections, They will be at Once Confirmed.

The Chinese and Other Treaties will be Considered by the Senate.

And then the War of Words will be Resumed Until the End.

An Unfortunate Leap for Lizzie Devine, of Barnum's London Circus.

The Oshkosh Man Who Offered $5,000 for the Rescue of His Wife from a Fire Sued for the Reward.

Death of Judge Volney French County Judge of Kenosha County.

The Body of an Unknown Man Found in a Walworth County Creek.

Death of Thomas C. Jones, Editor of the Whitewater Democrat.

THE SENATORS.

An Executive Session To-day—Result of the Senatorial Caucus.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 3.—The Republican Senators again held a protracted caucus in two sessions, two hours in the morning and three hours in the afternoon. The result, briefly stated, is that the Republicans will to-morrow move to go into executive session to transact business in the following order:

1. To refer all nominations—for the great bulk of the President's nominations still lie on the Vice President's table.
2. To consider the Chinese treaties and the two other minor treaties.
3. To act upon nominations with respect to which no contest is made.

It is believed that the policy of the Republicans with regard to Robertson's nomination is still undetermined. At the morning session of the caucus there was a very decided difference of opinion on the subject of contested nominations. One of the points raised was whether a contested nomination should be considered one as to which objections were made by two Senators or by one Senator from a State.

In plain language, all that was sought to be determined was whether the Republicans would agree to adopt a specific policy with regard to action upon the nomination of Mr. Robertson, collector of the port of New York. But it was thought advisable to frame a rule that might cover others. All the various theories about rules of action, and the contested and uncontested nominations mean practically Robertson, and nothing more. There was considerable feeling manifested in the caucus at these fine spun theories. One Senator said that they were attempting to bind the Republican party with threads. Several are reported to have stated that they would submit no longer to the policy which had been pursued, and that, if the Republicans as a caucus would not decide to go into executive session, they, as individuals, would feel compelled to vote with the Democrats to accomplish that purpose. There were some protests that Republicans ought not to defy a caucus, but the gentlemen who made these statements were not very resolute, and it is, perhaps, due to the positive stand which they took in the early caucus that the conclusion of the adjourned caucus was reached. One Senator is reported to have said that he was not disposed to support Gorman for secretary, in view of his assaults upon the administration. Mr. Blair is reported as being anxious to have the contest continue, as it has done, until next December, if necessary. He took the position that any different course would be a surrender.

But the majority of the Republicans favor immediate executive sessions. The only differences of opinion have been as to contested nominations, and as to the concessions which should be made to the principle of so-called "Senatorial courtesy." One Senator says that there is no nomination upon which a test-vote will not be taken at this session. It is now anticipated that the Senate will adjourn about June 1, possibly earlier.

THE EXACT SPOT.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Some time before the end of the Hayes administration the President and several members of his Cabinet made an excursion down the Potomac to the spot where Washington supposed to have been born. They found what they supposed to be the place, and plans were submitted for the building of the monument authorized by Congress. All that is left of the house is the foundation of the chimney, but a new phase was put on the matter by the receipt of a letter from Mrs. Washington, a descendant of George Washington, who says that the place selected for the monument is not the birthplace of the father of his country, but that the spot is some distance off. Senator Mahone was at the State department to-day to lay this matter before Secretary Blaine. The spot selected for the monument is so lonely and unfrequented, so abandoned and desolate that the monument will seem strongly out of place, whether Washington was born there or not.

SINGULAR SUITS.

A Man Who Offered $5,000 for the Rescue of His Wife's Body at the Oshkosh Hotel, Now Sued for That Amount.

MILWAUKEE, May 3.—Some few months ago the leading hotel of Oshkosh, the Beckwith house, was totally destroyed by fire. Four persons in the hotel at the time lost their lives. Among the number was Mrs. S. B. Paige, the wife of a wealthy lumberman and capitalist, who occupied a suite of rooms on one of the upper floors. While the hotel was burning Paige appeared on the scene, and, just about the same time, his wife was seen at one of the upper windows, frantically crying for help. Volumes of smoke issued from the windows of her room. While the crowd was standing aghast, utterly helpless, Mr. Paige offered $5,000 reward to anybody who would rescue his wife's body, whether alive or dead. Charles Bier, the assistant fire chief of the town, rushed up the stairs at the risk of his life and soon returned with the lifeless body of the unfortunate woman, who had been smothered before help could reach her. Paige was so grief stricken that he said nothing about the reward at the time or since. He made his arrangements to depart for Davenport, Iowa, where he will in future reside. Previous to his departure he was served with a summons in two suits, both of which are of more than ordinary interest. One was an action brought by S. Beckwith, proprietor of the hotel, against Paige for a board bill which he refused to pay on the ground that Beckwith had no fire escapes to his room, which he proposes to make a test case of to see whether landlords can collect under these circumstances. The other suit was by Assistant Fire Chief Bier for the collection of the $5,000 reward offered by Paige for rescuing his wife's body. He now refuses to pay the amount or any other sum.

AN UNFORTUNATE LEAP.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 3.—Lizzie Devine, with Barnum's London circus, while making the flying leap of 100 feet in the air by being fired from a catapult, here this afternoon, fell upon her head in the net which she refused to pay on the ground that Beckwith had no fire escapes to his room, which he proposes to make a test case of to see whether landlords can collect under these circumstances. The other suit was by Assistant Fire Chief Bier for the collection of the $5,000 reward offered by Paige for rescuing his wife's body. He now refuses to pay the amount or any other sum.

OVERCOAT-THIEF.

MILWAUKEE, May 3.—George Hunt, a well-dressed rascal, was arrested to-night by detectives on a charge of grand larceny. He makes a practice of visiting churches and stealing overcoats and other valuables, and when arrested found overcoats that had been stolen from Immanuel church last Sunday were recovered. Hunt is a bookkeeper by profession, and has lately come to this place from New York.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The May musical festival begun to-night in the Seventh Regiment armory. The chorists numbered 1,800, and the orchestra 250. The "Te Deum" and the "Tower of Babel" were given, but, notwithstanding the good work by solo singers, chorists, and orchestra, there was no time during the evening any real enthusiasm manifested by the 7,000 people present. President Garfield's box was empty.

THOMAS C. JONES.

WATERTOWN, May 3.—Thomas C. Jones, editor of the Watertown Democrat for the past five years, died to-day in his home in the Fourth ward, of typhoid pneumonia, after an illness of three weeks, aged 31 years. He leaves a wife, to whom he was married about a year since, to mourn his loss. The funeral will be held Thursday.

A BODY FOUND.

GENEVA LAKE, May 3.—The considerably decomposed and slime-covered body of an unknown man was found to-day in a creek in Bloomfield township, some four miles southeast of this village. The corpse was clad in heavy clothing, was short and heavy, with a long mustache. There is no clue to his identity.

JUDGE FRENCH.

KENOSHA, May 3.—Hon. Volney French, county judge of this county, died at his residence here to-day, after a long illness. He was one of the early settlers, and leaves a large property.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Sarah Bernhardt, her sister Jeanne, Mr. Jarrett, her agent, and other members of her company, will leave America to-morrow at 10 o'clock in the steamship L'Amerique.

To Persons About to Marry.

"To persons about to marry," Douglas Jerold's "don't," we supplement by saying without laying in a supply of Spring Blossom, which cure albumenaria and other kidney and bladder complaints. Prices: $1, 50 cents, and trial bottles, 10 cents. Sold by A. J. Roberts and Sherer & Co.

COOKVILLE.

—Spring is here and none can doubt it who see the lively work among the farmers. Last year, by the middle of April, all seeding was done and corn all planted before this time, but grass and verdure are about as forward now as it was then.

—Some snow banks can be seen yet on the south side of the hills.

—There is some complaint of clover killing out, but we think it is where it was fed late and close.

—Winter wheat is damaged some but mostly late sowed and in low places where water stood.

—Miss Tripp, of Janesville, has been engaged to teach the summer school, commencing last Tuesday.

—Mr. J. T. Dow is really in the sugar business this year having made from a few trees by the road-side thirty pounds of sugar and about twenty gallons of nice syrup. Who says they would not plant a row of maple trees?

—About a dozen boys had some rare sport one day last week. As the gates of the upper mill were shut down to make some repairs they discovered fish by the hundred and spears, pitch-forks and the hands scooped them out. So for once about every family in town had fresh fish for breakfast.

—Messrs. Rice & Barber have put in a coffer dam, so that they are able to do grading again. It is their intention to put in a permanent waste way of stone abutments as soon as help can be obtained.

—The brook trout ordered some time since by B. S. Hoxie, for Lynn Creek, have been received from the Madison State hatchery, and were put into the creek. Now boys, beware of taking any minnows from that stream for fish bait, lest you catch the penalty instead of minnows.

—Rev. Miss Graves, of Chicago, preached before Unity society, last Sunday morning and evening. It is probable that she may have regular appointments here.

—Miss Leila Dow teaches the village school in Union, this summer. The school commenced last Monday.

—Mr. John Porter has been engaged as one of the salesmen in the Grange store at Evansville. He is well qualified for the position.

The entertainments of the lodge have been unusually interesting lately. Two weeks ago Company B, (Cora B. Hoxie, Captain), presented the following programme:

Instrumental music, by Porter's Orchestra Band.
Declaration—Will Porter.
Song—Quartet.
Essay—by Mr. Hosmer.
Declaration—J. Porter.
Instrumental music.
Select reading—James Gillis.
Declaration—William Porter.
Song and chorus.
Reading—Mrs. E. B. Porter.
Declaration—Cora B. Hoxie.
Music—Orchestra.

And last Saturday evening Company A, Mrs. Hattie Newman, Captain, presented the following programme:

Declaration—Alice Stoenburner.
Declaration—A. Moseley.
Song and chorus.
Recitation—Eddie Porter.
Chorus—Jennie Seaver.
Song—Lill Whitmore.
Declaration—E. P. Savage.
Declaration—Leila Dow.
Instrumental music—Leila Dow.
Declaration—Will Moore.
Declaration—Mary Searls.
Decl. F. J. Newman and Anna G. Porter.
Reading—Mr. Barber.

Two weeks ago six new members were received, and last Saturday evening nine were admitted, so we conclude Rising Tide Lodge has renewed its vigor with its 21st year.

—Mr. E. Hoxie is quite sick with lung fever, the effects of a severe cold taken by working in the water at the mill dam.

—A good many of the marsh pastures look now as though they would make first rate fish ponds.

SHOPIERE.

—The Teachers' Association has been postponed to meet at town hall, May 5th.

—The bob-tailed wolf that defied all the hunters, last winter, has at last been captured. John Newkirk set a trap by the carcass of a dead sheep, on the Barrett farm, and she was fool enough to put her foot in it. It was found she had a family somewhere, so a search was made, and after a while eight young ones were found by an old stump.

—Our railroad boys are home—some of them pretty well used up. Al. Earl has his left hand smashed up; Olin has a big carbuncle on his neck; Fred is about scared out, and don't think he will take his chances twisting brakes any more.

—Mrs. Townsend is very sick. Her sister from Kalamazoo, Mich., arrived yesterday.

—The funeral sermon of Mr. Dole's children, Ziny and Louisa, who died of diphtheria some time since will be preached next Sunday morning at the Congregational church.

—Miss Maria Sweet is on the sick list.

—The body of James Erchenback, of Beloit, was brought here for burial Tuesday. Many will remember the white form of "old Jimmy" going about our streets years ago.

—It looks as though Brown & Bro., mean to keep their meat sweet this summer by the refrigerator room they are putting in.

Sub It In.

Jacob Loekman, 274 Clinton street, Buffalo, N. Y., says he has been using Thomas' Eucalyptic Oil for rheumatism. He had such a lame back that he could do nothing; but one bottle entirely cured him.

Sold by A. J. Roberts and Sherer & Co.

CENTER.

—Farmers are busily engaged in spring work, some few have already finished, some are trying to prepare their corn ground with the pulverizing harrow, which does fine work but hardly meets their expectations.

—Mr. John Fisher is quite ill at present, but we hope to see him out soon.

—Miss Ida Parmlay is also quite sick, but is improving.

—There will be a meeting of the Young Mutual Improvement Club, to be held at the residence of Mr. Geo. C. Cleland, on Friday evening, May 13. A full attendance is expected.

—Rev. Mr. Wells, of Janesville, will deliver a temperance address at the next meeting of the People's Temperance Union, Wednesday evening, May 11th.

—A serious mortality among sheep from grub in the head, is raging here.

—Mr. Brad's loss from fire was promptly adjusted by Simon Strauss, of Orfordville, agent.

—Squire & Munger start their grocery wagon next Monday.

Over 165,000 Howe Scales have been sold. Send for Catalogue to BORDEN, SELLER, & Co., General Agents, Chicago, Ill.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

The following statement of William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask for the attention of our readers. He says: "In the fall of 1876, I was taken with a violent bleeding of the lungs, followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when, to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have the past three years.

"I write this hoping you will publish it, so that every one afflicted with Dis-eased Lungs will be induced to take DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I have taken two bottles, and can positively say that it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness. My cough has almost entirely disappeared, and I shall soon be able to go to work." Sold by druggists.

Plowing in the Spring.

"Do we plow too much?" was the question put by one of our readers a few weeks ago, who then proceeded to give his experience in the preparation of land for corn without plowing, on which corn had been grown the year before. Another implement was used, and the results, as stated by our correspondent, proved very satisfactory in saving time and labor, and also in the outcome of the crop. This experiment is suggestive and no doubt arrested the attention of numerous readers, and it is not improbable that some of them may adopt the "new departure" in the preparation of their land for the spring crops.

The preparation of the soil for the reception of seed, is the most important of all mechanical operations on the farm, but the time, the desired depth, and the manner of doing the work depend upon various circumstances, as the kind of crop to which it is intended to devote the land, the character of the soil, etc. There is no question but that the time and labor of plowing some fields for a spring crop, are unnecessary, or in other words that fields which have been well tilled during the preceding season may be put into good condition for the reception of seed by the use of implements which greatly economize time and toil. But, of course, this method cannot be followed at random. Every farmer knows that a great deal depends upon the season as well as the kind or character of the soil. It sometimes happens that a light or naturally friable soil has become packed and hard by beating storms, and that plowing it is indispensable in order to put it into proper condition for a crop, while, under other circumstances soils of a much heavier texture turn over like an ash heap; so that in this, as in other things, the judgment of the farmer must govern in the methods employed in carrying on the operations of his farm.

A few words here upon spring plowing are not out of place. Sandy or gravelly soils may be plowed or re-plowed in the spring without running much risk, but it is different with clay soils, and the rule should govern that clay is to be plowed in the fall or winter. To pursue a different course involves a risk, especially with undrained land. A clay loam which is underdrained and has been well cultivated may be treated more like a lighter soil; but even then prudence is required, for clay soils are sensitive, and are often injured by starting the plow too soon after a heavy rain showing the effect in the rise of the crop. Stiff, adhesive soils, whether clayey or loamy cannot be plowed to advantage while wet or very dry. However, such soils are improved by frequent plowing, as this reduces them to that finely comminuted condition which is favorable to the growth of plants. All tillable land has more or less clay in it, and if worked when too wet, the result is harmful. It is in this way that disappointment occurs in the use of rich alluvial lands, which fail to produce abundantly because the clay is thus rendered comparatively useless.

It may seem superfluous to some of our readers to offer suggestions that are well understood by them. It must not be forgotten, however, that many of our later readers are young farmers, or men who have had little or no experience in tilling the soil. Nor is it out of place to occasionally remind farmers of longer experience that much care must be exercised in plowing or re-plowing land in spring. In no small degree does the success of the season's crop depend on the farmer's prudence in this regard; nor does the matter end with a single season, and this is one thing that is frequently lost sight of at the time a farmer may be turning over his land. While land is too wet to plow, whether in fall or spring, to turn it up that it will bake is to injure it for several years, entailing much unnecessary loss both of yield of crops, and of labor to restore it to a natural condition of fertility.—Prairie Farmer.

"Counter-Irritants."

Not a little pain, disease and sleeplessness also, may be saved by the proper understanding and use of counter-irritants. A pain in the head, and often in other parts of the body, can be removed or modified by putting the feet in hot water. How? Why? When the foot is irritated it causes a rush of blood to them, their veins become full and distended. This draws off the blood that was before crowding into the head or other affected part and producing pain there. Even rubbing the scalp briskly may attract outwardly the blood previously pressing the internal organs.

A rubber bag of hot water at the feet, or other warm gently irritating application, will often draw down the blood from the excited brain that one will soon fall into a quiet sleep. Ten to twenty drops of aromatic spirits of ammonia swallowed in half a tumbler of water on going to bed, or when restless and wakeful during the night, will very often put one into an easy slumber. It is quickly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body, producing a gentle stimulus. This calls the blood to every point, equalizing the circulation, and thus relieving the before excited brain.

A "cold" generally means that there is or has been unequal heat, disturbing the blood circulation, and causing congestion, pain and disease. A gentle physic of oil or calomel magnesia, in passing through the system, produces a flow to the interior, and thus draws the blood as well as draws it from parts affected by the "cold." Almost any cold taken before it becomes chronic, or so "seated" as to produce disorganization, may be relieved and usually cured by such a cathartic dose—one not severe enough to disorganize the digestive apparatus. Physic a cold is more philosophical than "feeding a cold," as the adage has it. The latter only aggravates the trouble.

A lightly sore or irritated throat is usually relieved or cured by applying an irritant to the outside. "Volatile liniment" is good for this. It is made by shaking well together any amount of sweet oil with one-fourth to one-half its bulk of ammonia, or "harts-horn"—the amount depending upon the strength of the ammonia. It is a good, cheap counter-irritant to keep on hand as well as for use as a new-cure as the old one shrinks from the action of the ammonia. It is also useful to rub well on the chest when there is soreness in the muscles. Alcohol, or strong whisky, rubbed upon the throat (outside) as a counter-irritant, often relieves a sore throat, and the same of a sore chest. When using alcohol cover the part well and quickly, to prevent a chill from the rapid evaporation. Liniment, alcohol, hot water, or flow to the interior, or put on the outside of the abdomen tends to relieve irritation of the bowels, on the general principle of counter-irritation above mentioned.

For an inflamed sore throat or tonsils, a very good general remedy is to gargle the throat every hour or two with a teaspoonful of chlorate of potassa solution. It is well to keep in every house a good sized vial of water with more chlorate of potassa in it than will dissolve. The clear liquid is then always of uniform strength, ready for use—a teaspoonful at a time, swallowing it after gargling it against the inflamed tonsils.—American Agriculturist.

Spring Tokens.

It is hard sometimes to tell when the back of winter is fairly broken. The persistence of its vertebrae in our climate is something wonderful. It surrenders a good many times in its later days, only to stiffen up more perpendicularly again for a renewed contest with the inevitable. Some of the birds which are always with us leave their haunts in the woods in these intervals when the weather relaxes to forage near the house and barn. They make a reconnaissance along the more traveled roads to see what bits of straw they can find to thresh out, or to gather the kernels spilled from the farmer's sleigh on its way to or from the mill. I have seen the crows particularly active in this way of late, as if their winter fast had made them bold, and they could endure their enforced hunger no longer.

The crow, if anybody does, knows pretty well what he is about, and he keeps his eyes and mind on the alert when he has a mission near the human habitation. I think I can see already that the belief in spring has had its effect upon him, although the vicissitudes of the late winter have given him an early and rigidly compulsory Lent, which he is trying to terminate just as ours begins. Not long after I was watching his and two of his brethren's movements the other day, a pair of bluejays came into the yard here, and both seated themselves on the low limb of a tall elm not far from my window. They were pretty specimens, with exceptionally soft and rich plumage; and if they were not making some calculations for the summer soon to come, then they were looking very wise and discursive over matters that seemed not a particle less significant.

They are rare visitors at so close a range, but the proximity of a corncrib to their family-selected perch may account for the unusual invasion. On the 3d of March, late in the day, I was surprised to find within a few feet of me I opened the door-yard gate leading to the highway, a plump little red squirrel, who, with his mate, occupies a hollow tree near by. He is a constant summer guest, but he had not shown his head for months until that moment. He knew me at sight as well as I knew him, and just turned back a little on the pickets of the fence which he had made his trotting-track until I had achieved the passage through it. His foresight had served to keep him fat and sleek, for no squirrel could look as he did who had not put up rations proportioned to the strength and severity of this uncommon season. There was a luster in his beady eye, too, that spoke of good heart and good cheer, and a cordial relish in his enjoyment of his new observations that assured me all was well with him and his household. But why should he have selected the 3d of March for his tribute to the season? Did he wish to see the very last of the Hayes quadrennial, or was he awaking himself betimes for the inauguration of Garfield?

How gracefully at ease this little rodent deports himself, as if an infinite leisure were his, and no carping censures could be permitted to mar it! The evergreens near by were the only objects that gave any sensible hint of summer attire, and yet the summer must somehow have entered into his thought. His confident set betokened that the worst of our journey to it is now ended, and that a new order of things is at hand. To see him, in the bright expectant attitude he had so suddenly assumed, was a veritable token of spring—a foretoken of summer—

Mistook His Role.

The Judge of a Galician village near Craew, having learned that an old peasant woman residing in his district had won a prize of three hundred florins in the Craew Lottery, bethought him of a stratagem by which they might be transferred to his own possession. Accordingly, he dressed in devil costume, he presented himself, as the clock struck midnight, at the old woman's lonely dwelling, aroused her from her slumbers, and in a hollow voice commanded her to hand over her winnings. The terrified woman at once produced seventy-five florins, protesting that she had that day lodged the balance in the Craew Savings Bank; whereupon the devil informed her, with dreadful threats of infernal torment, that she had failed to fulfill his behests, that she would return the following night at the same hour to receive the remainder. Next morning the poor old lady applied to the savings bank for her deposit. The manager, surprised that she should wish to draw it out so soon after having lodged it, inquired into her reasons for so doing, and elicited a full confession of her adventure of the previous night. When his Satanic Majesty called at twelve o'clock on the 2d of the following month, he gave the matter a quietus he was received by two gentlemen, who handcuffed him, marched him off to Craew, and there delivered him to the secular arm, which will probably disable him from playing the devil for some time to come.

The Center of Population.

For several weeks an expert "calculator" has been at work in the census office figuring out the location of the center of population of the United States. It is not an easy task, as one can imagine who gives the matter a little thought. The whole territory is divided up into small squares, and the population ascertained for each square. This is arrived at by consulting the population of each civil district, township or ward. The squares are made to balance against each other until a common center is ascertained. An expert calculator has already been engaged more than a month in this work, and another month will be required before the true "center" is known. The work has progressed far enough, however, to show that the center will be very near Cincinnati, certainly not over four or five miles from the business center of the city. A few weeks ago it was thought the center would make a final "landing" upon the hills which encircle Cincinnati to the northward, but progressive calculations now indicate that it will cross the Ohio River and establish itself on the south side. This is owing to the unexpected increase of population in the South, which will cause the "center" to shift further southward than heretofore.
